BLUE APPLE ART STUDIOS

Online

The team at Blue Apple Art Studios have been working hard to find ways to keep our artists engaged in the art making process, during this unsettling time.

We know how important art is for your emotional wellbeing, so the team have come up with an online art class platform for you to access over the coming months, whilst the Terrey Hills studio is temporarily closed.

Our online classes will give you the opportunity to have an individualised class that is almost as fun as coming into the studio. The session will be live, and you will be able to see and communicate with your art teacher in real time. This means you can still ask questions, show your artwork and receive comment and instructions as you progress with your art project.

WHAT ART RESOURCES WILL I RECEIVE?

In joining an online class, you will have an art kit delivered to you with about 8 weeks worth of materials for you to use in the sessions. You can plan your session with your teacher, so you will know what materials to get ready each week. The only items you may need (and will probably have at home) is extra paper, pencil sharpener and eraser.

The materials in your kit allow you to plan your session with your art facilitator, in painting, drawing, pastel work and relief printmaking. You can also use materials you may already have at home.

Classes will run for up to 2 hours every weekday and will be billed as part of your NDIS service agreement.

WHAT TECHNOLOGY DO I NEED?

You will need access to a computer or iPad, and you may need assistance from a support worker or family member to set up your art space for each class. Our preferred platform for delivering the art class is through Microsoft Teams. We will send you some information on how to access this once you register for classes.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

Current art students will be charged through their regular NDIS Service Agreement at 1:3 ratio.

New students will be charged 1:2 ratio $33.91 per hour.
